WHEN HOPE BECOMES REALITY

I would love to see Halley's Comet. When it came within eye-sight of the earth 28 years ago, it was not in an easily visible position in the sky. However, I know that I will not be around to see it in 2061 when it comes back. I am excited about celestial sightings and events. (at 10:10 P.M. every evening you can easily see a satellite traveling south to north about 45 degrees in the eastern sky.)

How do you think godly men and women during the time of Genesis - Malachi felt about the coming of the kingdom of God? From the time of Jacob (Gen. 49:10) in 1860 B.C. to the time and writings of Isaiah and Daniel, God's chosen people anticipated, prayed for, and hastened its arrival.

Finally, after the Messiah had spoken so much about the near-at-hand kingdom, the Pentecost after the resurrection of Jesus arrived. Hope became reality. Prayer was answered. The kingdom of God on earth had its beginning with the establishment of the church.

Truly, we are recipients of the greatest gift ever given, and along with it, all of the accompanying blessings. We do not have to hope for a future event. It is here. Becoming Christians confers upon us citizenship. Remaining faithful brings us eternal joy. God, through Christ, invites you in.

Peter
